Luxury village in the Paznaun Valley.

Extensive slope stabilisation works were necessary, and six of the buildings required additional deep foundations with bored piles. The poor soil conditions meant that the soil had to be replaced to a depth of up to 2m on parts of the site. Diversion of the slope water - predominately meltwater in the spring and summer - represented a particular challenge. In September 2017, all the project participants celebrated the completion of the chalet village with a grand opening ceremony.

Impressions

Image notes

1

Working at full capacity in a difficult location.

The steep slope of the site necessitated extensive stabilisation works.

2

Winter idyll in a luxury chalet

The chalet village attracts numerous guests in both summer and winter.
